FULL SAIL
UNIVERSITY

We measure our success by your success

If you're curious about what happens after graduation, want to know how your skill set fits into your potential career path, or are interested in learning what you can do now to start paving your way to a successful future, the Career Development department is here to support you. Learn more about how our services can assist you at any point during your journey at Full Sail and beyond.

During Your Degree

Dedicated Advisors

The Advisor Team consists of degree-specific professionals who have worked in or are highly knowledgeable of your prospective industry. They offer invaluable professional insights and career advice.

Industry Outreach and Research

From day one, you will have access to an extensive library of industry-focused materials that will provide the first vital step in finding employment. The Career Development team stays updated on these ever-evolving fields and can help you find the most relevant websites, networks, and resources suited for your interests and focus.

In addition to bringing you guest speakers, our Industry Outreach team maintains relationships with employers to provide insight into the offerings of Full Sail University and the capabilities of our students and graduates.

Here are just a few of the companies who have visited Full Sail University to provide career guidance to our students:

Before You Graduate

Employment Strategy

Prior to graduation, you will develop a multifaceted employment strategy through one-on-one appointments with your industry-specific advisor. This includes strategizing on career paths and location options, tailoring cover letters and résumés to specific companies, conducting practice interviews or reviewing demos, and focusing all your available efforts on finding a position.

Connect with Full Sail Grads

Through Alumni Virtual Mixers, you will be given the opportunity to network with and ask advice from fellow Full Sail grads. Additionally, you will have access to employment opportunities, notification of in-person regional events, tips on resources, and much more.

Career Curriculum

In your degree-specific curriculum, you'll have the opportunity to work on your career development and planning, as well as your portfolio, through a series of Professional Development Seminars. These seminars will focus on a variety of topics, including personal branding, career research, networking, and more. Additionally, all bachelor's students take a Career Readiness course at the end of their degree program.

After You Graduate

Career Opportunities

Employers regularly reach out to us requesting assistance in finding the right Full Sail graduate for a particular position. Over the years, we've responded to thousands of these calls and have assisted Full Sail graduates around the world in pursuing their careers. As a student, you'll have access to these job leads – and be assigned a Career Advisor – three months before graduation to help you get a head start on your career.

Your Full Sail Connection

Full Sail's Career Development department will be available throughout your career, keeping you up to speed as trends come and go and the professional landscape evolves.

The Alumni Division

The Alumni Division hosts on-site visits and lectures, sponsors events, maintains an online community, and supports our graduates throughout the duration of their careers. Full Sail alumni events happen throughout the year all over the country, giving grads from all degree programs the opportunity to catch up with classmates and build their networks.
